

Speaking and Hosting

IHP events are often organized and hosted in partnership with various industry stakeholders where we facilitate market engagements with health practitioners by way of sponsorship or subsidies. This approach has two distinct advantages; firstly, we substantially reduce the costs of client engagement with service providers in this sector and secondly, we increase availability and access to high impact education for health practitioners and their staff.

Key Notes

Key Note talks are an excellent way for organizational leaders and managers to be exposed to alternative thinking and thought leadership in their industry. All organizations are challenged by the rate of change and the rapid advancement of the world around them – the real challenge however is that most organizations see the world from the inside out and often don't see what they look like from the outside in. What we do is challenge perspectives through talks and content that can be customized to the strategic needs of the organizations we work with.

Strategic Facilitation

Our independence and objectivity place us in a unique position to facilitate strategic conversations across industry stakeholders.
